The following text is about Todd Liebert, CEO of architectural firm Clark Patterson Lee, and his leadership style and career path.

Liebert began his career as an architect, but later became the CEO of Clark Patterson Lee, leading the company through various challenges, such as the 2008 recession. He has a strong focus on sustainability and innovation, and has been recognized for his leadership in the architectural industry.

Liebert says that he is always working on his skills, whether it's through education or on-the-job training. He believes that it's important to keep learning and growing, and that this is what makes him a successful leader.

The company has seen a lot of growth under Liebert's leadership, and he is proud of the work that they have done. He says that the company's success is due in large part to the dedication and hard work of the employees.

Liebert is also committed to giving back to the community, and has been involved in various initiatives to support local schools and other organizations.

Overall, Liebert's career has been marked by a focus on innovation, sustainability, and community involvement, and he is a strong advocate for the architectural industry as a whole.

Designing the firm’s future

Revving up the growth

CEO Todd Liebert leads architectural firm Clark Patterson Lee.

Photo by Kate Melton